With a little help from their friends, Encore Theatre Company has achieved a pretty SMIK look for their brand new website!

Simon & Michelle Frost of SMIK Web Design have work with the Encore team to build a website that captures some of the excitement of the company's history and showcases their productions, past, present and future with more than 1,000 images – most of them never published before!

Plus you'll find the complete back catalogue of SHOWBUZZ e-Newsletters, plenty of info about the company and key contacts, our private sector partners and sponsors, and Encore's shows Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat and 'Allo 'Allo are directly linked to their online bookings. LOG ON & ENJOY!

40,000 HOURS+

Launceston City Council has recognised the tireless efforts of Team Encore by awarding the company with the Outstanding Volunteer Achievement Award 2011 in the field of Arts, Culture and Heritage.

Run entirely by volunteers, in 2010 Encore presented 4 shows bringing together the artistic, technical and administrative talents of approximately 160 cast members, 80 crew, 40 musicians and 120 theatre ushers. From actors to singers, musicians to make-up artists, carpenters to electricians, scenic artists to seamstresses, each played a significant role in delivering Encore's community productions, with a conservative estimate of total volunteer hours in 2010 at 40,000+.

Volunteering anything from 10 to 400+ hours to raise these events which entertained a collective audience of 14,500+ people, according to box office data some 40% of these audiences came from 15kms or more away from the City of Launceston, bringing with them economic benefits as they enjoyed these shows in the central city where there is shopping, food and entertainment facilities also available.

Delivering affordable, locally produced shows to the wider community, Encore firmly believe that theatre is the greatest team sport ever invented, where individuals can only shine because of the work and dedication of the team supporting them.

Thanks to everyone who is a part of Team Encore. We could not and would not want to do it without you!

It's A Mad World

Launceston's Madeline Huett has never shied away from the spotlight, enjoying her roles in Encore theatre productions both on and off stage, but in coming weeks that spotlight and her world is about to get a whole lot bigger.

Selected as one of 100 contestants who will vie for the title of Australia's Next Top Model, Madeline is currently in Sydney for the filming of the seventh series, which commenced in the last couple of weeks.

Fingers crossed she will progress to the Top 20 (well, we haven't seen her arrive home yet, so we're very hopeful of this!!) and then the competition really hots up for her.

Proud mum and Encore Vice President Wendy Huett is equally as nervous about the competition, and is often seen at Joseph rehearsals clutching her mobile phone and waiting for news from her daughter.

The new series of Australia's Next Top Model will go to air in August on pay-tv channel Fox8 on Austar. Chookas Madeline!!
